

Theme for English III

Mr. Moran said,

Go home and write

A page tonight

And let that page come out of you –

Then, it will be true.

I wonder (what do you wonder when asked to do this)?

I am ... (describe yourself, end with a location)

I went to ... (describe where you've been) , then here to Woodrow

To this school (preposition phrase) (prepositional phrase).

I am the ... (describe how you see yourself at Woodrow)

The steps from ... (describe where you go to write this – can be a couple lines)

and write this page:

It's not easy to know ... (what is it that you do not know about yourself)

But I guess I'm ... (what do you know about yourself)

(Place or object that influences or shapes you – shoot for imagery), I hear you

I hear (another place or object that shapes or influences you), too. Me—who?

Well, I like to ... (list things you like to do)

I like to ... (list more things you like to do)

I like a ... (things you like),

Or (things that may not be typical for your race – shoot for alliteration).

I guess being (he says “colored” – how do you define yourself in a word) doesn't make me not like

The same things other folks like who are (the opposite of you – matches you alliteration line).

So will my page be (use the same word you put in for “colored) that I write?

Being me, it will not be (how you see me, your teacher).

But it will be

A part of you, instructor.

You are (how you see me, your teacher). –

Yet a part of me, as I am a part of you.

That's American.
